

ABOUT: Hilton Worldwide + Entertainment

Eddie Fisher, Debbie Reynolds and Conrad Hilton, 1955

Hilton Worldwide + Entertainment: Hilton Worldwide properties around the world (and sometimes even in outer space) have made multiple appearances on both the big and small screens since producers began rolling film at our hotels during Hollywood's Golden Age. Decades later, Hilton properties are still dedicated to – and passionate about – helping create memorable moments in the entertainment industry.

Conrad Hilton, the founder of Hilton, was always a Hollywood insider. He intuitively understood the power of celebrities and how to harness this power to make big things happen. He started a relationship with Hollywood that, more than 60 years later, is still part of the Hilton Worldwide DNA.

Today, Hilton values its relationship with the entertainment industry more than ever.

HILTON IN ACTION

The modern-day Godzilla™ features scenes filmed at Hilton Hawaiian Village® Waikiki Beach Resort of Godzilla's destruction of the property's well-known Rainbow Tower. Of the hundreds of extras in the epic action adventure, 30 were real personnel from the Hawaii National Guard who brought trucks and a Humvee equipped with a fake 50-caliber machine gun and a cooler stocked with Cocoa Puffs.

HOW HILTON SETS THE STAGE

For more than six decades, Hilton Worldwide has set the stage for some of Hollywood's most renowned films and television productions. From movies being filmed almost entirely at a property, like the Waldorf Astoria New York for Scent of a Woman, to the war room for team Frost throughout Frost/Nixon, our properties have offered a unique setting to capture some of the entertainment industry's most memorable moments. With a portfolio of innovative brands, we continue our legacy by providing transformative backdrops and scenery that allow producers to elevate the storytelling process.

LIGHTS. CAMERA. HILTON.

Hollywood studios find that Hilton provides unique backdrops and set locations to create iconic cinematic moments.

Some of the most notable projects Hilton has been a part of have gone on to become classics, like Elvis Presley's Blue Hawaii, filmed on location in Hawaii and at one of Hilton's flagship hotels Hilton Hawaiian Village® Waikiki Beach Resort. Others have gone on to win Academy Awards and other industry accolades.

Below is a list of the most recognizable projects filmed at Hilton properties over the past six decades:
